

Sunset Sanctuary

Josephine is quiet and mellow. She spends days sitting in her red chair or lounging on her fleece bed. (She'd probably take up knitting if she had opposable thumbs.) She hides when people approach, but if you sit down she'll come over for petting. And once she gets settled in your lap, she never wants to leave. You won't find a cuddlier or sweeter rabbit than Josephine.

Cindy has been spending a lot of time hiding in her box lately, but that's not her usual style. If you make the effort to meet her, you'll find she's playful and outgoing. She loves a rousing game of fetch (she throws, you fetch) or a good ear-scratching. She likes people better than rabbits, though, and would prefer to have your undivided attention. Cindy has a lot of personality, so you won't feel like you need another bunny.

Elsie is a sweet girl who likes people, even small ones. She hasn't yet found the bunny of her dreams, but she's looking. And she's quite a find—beautiful, charming, and lovable. She has only one fault: she hates nail trims, and she's not shy about expressing her displeasure. You might want to bring her back to us for pedicures.

Millie & Sorcha are an entertaining pair for the experienced bunny person. Millie can be a handful, but she is also a lot of fun. And many times you'll find she's happy to sit on your lap and get petted; it just depends on her mood. Sorcha is always sweet and affectionate. You'll never be bored with these two around. And if you wanted to enter the Danish rabbit jumping competition, Millie's your girl.

Romeo & Juliet are full of youthful exuberance and show no signs of slowing down, although they're now no longer teenagers. They love a good romp and will climb all over each other for a treat or a little attention. You'll want to make sure your house is thoroughly bunny-proofed, but then you'll be in for an amusing time. These two are so cheerful and sweet you'll wonder how you ever lived without them.
